APPENDIX A

REPORT ON THE READING ROOM/DOCUMENTATION CENTRE

June 1 1997 - May 31 1998

submitted by Carol Mitchell
Documentalist

Statistics

Number of people using the Reading Room: 1364

New patrons registered: 154. Breakdown: 49 Women's Studies students, Concordia students from other disciplines: 96
Patrons from outside Concordia: 9.

Reference questions: 1,074. Many enquiries are from those without any affiliation to Concordia or the Institute. Our reputation is international.

Loans: 921

Reserves requests: 70. These numbers are lower this year as students are now purchasing entire packages of readings at the copy centres. This is helpful as more time may be spent on research and less on clerical work.

Monographs purchased: 18
monographs added to collection: (processed, catalogued and shelved): 40

Periodical subscriptions renewed and/or begun: 25

The Reading Room continues to exchange publications with 12 Canadian and 28 international organizations.

Gifts and Donations

Several books have been donated both by authors and Reading Room users including: A Spirit Set Free, Beyond Abuse...poems by Maire Walsh, a survivor of incest, The Woman Source Catalog and Review: Tools for Connecting the Community of Women edited by Ilene Rosoff, donated by Karen Zimmer. A Woman's Place, My Life and Politics by Audrey McLaughlin, Introducing Women's Studies, edited by Victoria Robinson and Diane Richardson, donated by Michiko Aramaki, Bone Marrow by Louise Halfe, Race, Class, Women and the State by Tanya Schecter and Bending at the Bow by Marion Douglas. Student Pascale Godbout donated copies of Canadian Women and Rethinking Canada. Graduating student Rachel de Grace donated an NFB video entitled Sisters in the Struggle, edited by Dionne Brand and Ginny Stikeman. Laura Delaney donated many clippings on women and violence for our vertical files.

Work Study Programme

We received funding from the Financial Aid Office to hire a student again this year for 12 weeks per fall and winter semester (12 hours per week). The pay was $8.00 per hour (plus 4%) half of which came out of the $10,000.00 allotted for the Reading Room salary. Kim (Kimberly) Reichman, a Women's Studies and Political Science major, was hired and ably performed duties in the Reading Room. As she was in her final year, she was familiar with Reading Room procedures and literature, thus far less time was needed for training. Kim was the ideal student with her two years of background in Women's Studies. She showed initiative and common sense.

Visitors

There have been several visitors to the Reading Room over the past year including four international students sent by Continuing Education professor Jeannie Hazel to interview me as an assignment for improving their English language skills and to learn more about Women's Studies. A student from McGill's School of Library and Information Science also requested an interview, as in previous years. Sixteen visiting scholars from Indonesia participating in a programme at the Centre for Developing Area Studies at McGill University were shown the Reading Room by Principal Chantal Maillé. Raymond Smith, a former Montreal computer expert now living in Paris, and Donald Barnes, a recent Concordia M.A. graduate and retired high school principal, one of the many who wrote letters of support for the Institute last year, also visited the Reading Room. Several students and one professor brought their mothers to see the holdings and to introduce me. The Reading Room is also frequented by students from McGill, Université de Montreal and several CEGEPs and high schools, some of whom take out memberships as Friends of the Reading Room.

Documentalist's Publications

For the first time the Reading Room has issued A Current Listing of Contents of Selected Women's Studies Journals. One issue per semester is planned. Copies of this were sent to faculty and interested members of the Institute and feedback has been extremely positive.

I reviewed Foundations of Rehabilitation Teaching with Persons who are Blind or Visually Impaired by Paul E. Ponchillia and Susan V. Ponchillia, NY: AFB Press, 1996. This was published in Education Libraries. vol 21, No. 3 1997, and in Bulletin of the Section for Disadvantaged Persons of IFLA [International Federation of Library Associations] vol. 22, No. 1.

I have resigned as Assistant Editor of Education Libraries, a position I have held since 1992.

Concerns

Despite frequent communications to Security, their staff appear on a sporadic basis to check the Reading Room and often do little more than appear in the main doorway for a second. They have to be asked and trained to check throughout the Reading Room, which at present is comprised of three rooms, two washrooms and several cupboards. We are rapidly running out of space despite using cupboards and a bathroom for storage. There is also some concern that eventually the weight distribution of the collection may prove too much for the present premises. Ideally, we need at least one more room and hopefully in the coming year we may be able to make use of an additional room on the 4th floor.

The Institute's Communications Officer Susan Sullivan continues to do the necessary secretarial work for the Reading Room. She makes lists of new holdings, prepares cheque requisitions forms, and any necessary correspondence sent by the documentalist.

This has been a positive, busy and successful year for the Reading Room.
